Opening to JOY
Christmas Eve Offering Recipients

Every year, our congregation gives the whole Christmas Eve offering away. This year, we are giving the offering to two local organizations that help people in our community access food and shelter. We will be collecting donations during the in-person service on Christmas Eve. You may also give to these organization with our online giving form on December 24.

Repairers of the Breach is Greater Milwaukee’s only daytime refuge and resource center for homeless adults open 6 days per week. They believe that offering life-saving, life-sustaining, and life-restoring programs is key to self-reliability.

Interchange Food Pantry, a food pantry that First Church help found in 1971 along with a group of neighboring churches, is committed to helping provide healthy food to low-income residents of Milwaukee in a compassionate and supportive environment. Every $1 you donate to Interchange buys $5 worth of high-quality food for pantry guests.

December Share the Plate

Maroon Calabash is our December Share the Plate recipient.

Maroon Calabash is a Black-led nonprofit organization that provides a space for Black birth workers in Milwaukee County to practice liberatory Reproductive Justice at the intersection of cultural traditions and modern medicine.

Maroon Calabash partners with Next Door Foundation and provides support to Black pregnant and postpartum folxs by providing doula services. They provide a deeper network of support for their clients that is nonjudgmental and offers full spectrum reproductive care. They also run a number of drives for supplies to meet the needs of postpartum folxs including diaper drives (this includes donations of baby wipes, postpartum pads and ice packs) as well as soliciting donations of gently used baby supplies, furniture and clothes. For more information on Maroon Calabash or to donate to their drives, please visit their website at https://www.marooncalabash.com/.

Contributions can be made securely online at the First Church link here or mail your check to First Church made payable to: Maroon Calabash. The church will send all contributions to Maroon Calabash.
This December, we will explore the joys and challenges of “Opening to Joy.”

While we must limit attendance to 100 people per service for safety reasons, we are so looking forward to gathering with you in our beautiful church home for our first indoor, in-person services since the COVID pandemic began. Make sure to reserve your seat in advance! Reservations can be made beginning December 1 and are open to members and guests on a first-come, first-served basis. We will livestream the 5:00 p.m. service for people who need to attend virtually.

After Christmas Eve, we will return to worship online-only for a month, so staff have time to get everything in place to be able to offer in-person and online services simultaneously every Sunday morning. We anticipate opening the church to every Sunday in-person worship services beginning in February. Attendance at those services will also be limited to 100 people per service, and will require reservations in advance, and proof of vaccination or a negative COVID test to attend. Online worship services will still be available as well.

There will be challenges and imperfection in the process of returning to in-person worship at First Church, but there will also be great JOY. I look forward to truly opening to that joy with you.

With great joy, we will open the sanctuary for Christmas Eve services at 3:30 p.m., 5:00 p.m., and 6:30 p.m!

There are funds available for First Church members and active friends who are experiencing short-term financial need. If you, or one of your First Church friends, is having a sudden financial need, contact one of the Ministers to talk about this crisis support fund. These funds are available as a result of the generosity of First Church members who have been donating to a small Ministers’ Discretionary Fund designed to help our members and active friends who are in emergency situations like sudden job loss, hospitalization, or pandemic-related urgent financial need.

We now have over $4,000.00 available in this fund and want to make sure church members and friends are aware of this resource for financial emergencies. If you are in need, please contact Rev. Jennifer or Rev. Dena.
It doesn’t seem like joy should be complicated, but sometimes it is. Opening to joy, our theme for December, indicates there is something we can do to increase the likelihood that we will experience joy, and I think that’s true. As we approach another pandemic winter, making a practice of opening to joy might be more important than ever.

Pandemic winter is a strange season. Last pandemic winter, I felt joy less frequently than usual, but when it came, I felt it more acutely and appreciatively, recognizing how it felt like grace into a time of sorrow and loneliness. This inspired me to practice looking for and noticing joy more often. For example, I notice a burst of joy inside when I see your dear faces on Zoom or during our outdoor worship services. I notice joy when observing the beauty of nature on my daily walks. I reminisce about joy in times past – winters of skiing, snowshoeing, skating, building snow forts, making snow angels. I feel joy when talking to a friend or greeting a neighbor. Simple things like singing around the house give me unaccountable joy.

When do you feel joy? What are you doing when you feel joy? If you can identify it, do more of it, as long as it doesn’t harm you or others. Let yourself feel joy and appreciate it because sometimes it is fleeting.

Christmas scriptures and music often use the word “behold.” My practice of opening to joy involves beholding what brings joy. Behold. Stop. Notice. Feel joy. It’s OK to open to joy, even if it brings tears.
When asked, “What is joy?” Rev. Willie James Jennings of Duke Divinity School responds, “I look at joy as an act of resistance against despair and all its forces.” He goes on to explain that when he says despair, he means, “all the ways in which life can be presented to us as not worth living.”

This definition of joy resonates within me as staying open to joy requires a rebellious heart and a willingness to embrace life even as we struggle during these times. Lately, I’ve found joy in the little things like holding the hand of a loved one in the hospital, watching my child teach the neighbor child how to ride their bike, hot tea on a cold day and getting to bless a baby as the snow falls.

I believe joy is a part of our life inheritance because joy is so indomitable, intertwined so intrinsically with life that it exists even in despair. I know I have found it even there.

When we find laughter together in the midst of suffering or gather together in a ritual of remembrance that celebrates our beloveds, we find joy can exist even in our sorrow. Joy offers us a moment of transcendence in these moments and creates a connection with something beyond ourselves that is sacred and worthy.

Being open to joy, cultivating joy in our lives requires a grateful heart that celebrates our blessings as it acknowledges the possibility of suffering and loss. We are not grateful or joyful without a sense of wonder at our aliveness and relationships that connects us to the world.

Joy as an act of resistance, let this be an action we take every day.

Let us make opening to joy something we put on our holiday list and check it off whenever we find it. And then put it on the list again every day we wake up and breathe in air and smile at those we love and keep getting to live.

May we be exemplars of intention to one another, sharing gratitude, acknowledging all the little things that add up to name and claim joy.

Blessings,
Rev. Kimberlee

Giving Tuesday and Joy
by Lynne Jacoby

First Church will be participating in Giving Tuesday this year to help fund virtual access to our programs even when we go back to gathering in person.

And believe me I can’t wait to gather again in person! I confess I’ve long resisted the idea of “embodied” experiences as a deep way of understanding. Not anymore! Being together physically makes a difference. Plus, I just miss people and chance conversations that help weave connection in the halls or after meetings, and hello grins given and received. I miss it all.

Still, when I think of virtual church, I think of my 90-year-old dad, whose been tuning into services from Vermont and says (almost every time I speak to him!), “Your ministers are just wonderful, just wonderful, both of them!” And I think of Cami, who explained to our Zoom Anti-racism Team meeting last week that she was speaking softly because she had just put her daughter to bed. I also think of Janet, Lisa, Nancy, Don, Chris, and others who have been vital leaders in this community and remain so from different states now, thanks to Zoom.

Selfishly, I think of Liz who Zooms in from Oklahoma to our weekly Poetry Group. In fact, when we move the weekly group to in-person once a month, I’m guessing a third of our participants live too distantly to join us for those sessions. If we can’t bring them into the room virtually on those Wednesdays, I’ll miss their insights, humor and perspectives.

But with Liz, I’ll find myself smiling even before I know what she’s going to say, and I think it’s because she almost always has a deep strain of gratitude in her reflections. I don’t even know if gratefulness is a conscious choice or practice for her. But I do believe it’s a source of a joy I sense in her that is not always upbeat, but is contagious even through Zoom. I’d miss her example of gratitude. I’d miss her joy.

A Conversation about the Future of our Seven Principles

by Michelle Boehm, Rollie Hanson, and Terry Wiggins
Article II Team

Do you know the Seven Principles of Unitarian Universalism may be revised?

The Seven Principles are part of our Living Tradition, a covenant and statement from the merger of the Universalist Church of America and the American Unitarian Association in 1961. In creating the UUA bylaws, the merger process created a covenant that the member congregations would affirm and promote the Seven Principles in Article II.

Concerns were brought forth at the 2017 General Assembly (GA) that the Seven Principles had not been updated regularly as planned and may not address our commitment to anti-racism, anti-oppression, and multiculturalism. The UUA Board of Trustees appointed a Study Commission in 2019 to review the principles section of the bylaws and propose revisions through a lens of love in action.

That proposal will be submitted in January 2022 and may be voted on at GA 2022. It will soon be time for our congregation to examine our values and determine whether they align with any proposed revisions, because our delegates to GA may be called upon to participate in a vote that would have lasting impact on our church community.

Stay tuned! We will be sharing more and encouraging conversations on this important topic.

1st Principle: The inherent worth and dignity of every person

2nd Principle: Justice, equity and compassion in human relations

3rd Principle: Acceptance of one another and encouragement to spiritual growth in our congregations

4th Principle: A free and responsible search for truth and meaning

5th Principle: The right of conscience and the use of the democratic process within our congregations and in society at large

6th Principle: The goal of world community with peace, liberty, and justice for all

7th Principle: Respect for the interdependent web of all existence of which we are a part
The Board of Trustees held their monthly meeting in October. The Board reviewed highlights from the First Church member survey conducted in December 2020. There were 160 replies. The survey reflected a mosaic that is our community.

Responses from the most recent survey reflected an older demographic of replies and fewer families replies compared to the survey taken in 2018. The focus of the survey was the Ends Statements and how they are perceived and processed by First Church members, and if we as a community think that progress towards these Ends Statements is being made. The survey results do reflect that members feel that we are making progress towards our Ends Statements.

Reverend Jennifer reported that while we are still in the midst of the pandemic, the First Church COVID Team is creating a comprehensive safe return plan as the COVID numbers decrease. At this writing, preliminary discussions to returning to in-person services include a projected three-phase process. The specifics of that three-phase process can be found on our website.

Safety protocols for all three phases will include: proof of vaccination or test results within 72 hours of the meeting plus other safety protocols to include masking, limited numbers of people gathering, appropriate distancing, etc. All phases will offer virtual options in addition to in-person.

Other business discussed was the Strategic Planning Committee interviewing fund raising consultants. They hope to have names to put forward to the Board of Trustees at the November meeting. The goal is to address and close the First Unitarian Society of Milwaukee’s persistent financial gap to provide our present and future community members with a stable foundation for continued presence in the Milwaukee community, now and for future generations.
